

Quotation#8

“Not only can man’s being not be understood without madness, but it would not be man’s being if it did not bear madness within itself as the limit of his freedom.”

Lacan, J. (1966), “Presentation on Psychological Causality.” In Écrits, New York: Norton, 2006, p. 144.

